Skills and Experience

John specialises in defined benefit superannuation and other employee benefits, and general insurance, particularly injury compensation schemes.

Advice to defined benefit superannuation funds includes valuation and compliance tasks, asset/liability modelling, mortality and other decrement investigations and policy development. John has acted as an expert witness in defined benefit superannuation matters. John prepares valuations of employee benefits such as long service leave, annual leave and sick leave.

John's general insurance expertise is predominantly in workers compensation as well as dust disease and severe injury compensation, where he acts as both a primary actuary to schemes and as a reviewing actuary. John has a long history with state-based compensation arrangements.

John is an Honorary Research Fellow at the Research Institute for Environment & Livelihoods at Charles Darwin University.
